

New Normal School Will Cost $400,000.00 Says Minister of Public Works

CONSTRUCTION WILL PROCEED IMMEDIATELY

Vote for $200,000 Is Approved by Committee of Legislature

Total amount of construction of the new Edmonton Normal School will be $400,000, according to a statement made by the Minister of Public Works at a press conference this afternoon by Hon. G. L. McPherson, minister of public works, after his return from a tour of inspection of the departmental estimates.

A vote of $200,000 in respect to the school was passed in the house of commons yesterday, and will be voted in the house of lords in time for occupation in September.

This amount, explained the Minister, was to cover the cost of work to be carried out during the year 1928-29, the current year, and in next year's estimates the amount will be increased by another $200,000.

A sum of $200,000 additional will be voted in the fall session.

Continuing, he intimated explained that it was planned to have the construction work completed by June 1, 1929, in time for occupation in September.

To understand, however, that the school will open in time for the new session, the Minister was not in a position to give a definite date.

Votes for site and construction of buildings proposed to be the subject of estimates were deferred until the information was elicited.

All amounts voted, $200,000 for school buildings, were the largest individual item in a total of $627,771 for the entire budget.

Details Explained.

Asked how much was voted for a dormitory at the Vermilion School of Agriculture and how much for a dormitory of necessity such as sewage disposal plant, a water tower and wells.

The Minister said the Hospital, Pollock was voted approximately $200,000, and the new hospital amounting to $100,000 was earmarked for construction of a spur railway line to the hospital grounds.

The Minister said the estimated amount of the minimum was out of date and while the expenditure in recent years had been $200,000 it would take with the spur line effect a large saving. Construction of the spur at Pollock has been one of the institution will cost $10,000.

Another $200,000 will be voted for accommodation at the Provincial Mental Institution, Oliver, was approved by the committee of legislature staff at the Leithbridge jail took a vote of $200,000 for the construction of a superintendent's residence, laundry and sidewalks at the Central Alberta Penitentiary, which is located $10,000.

Provide for Addition.

For building addition to the Normal School and Institute of Technology, $100,000 was voted for a workshop, $40,000 was passed.

For the new hospital, a new chateau was voted $200,000 for increased accommodation and further farm improvements.

The tremendous success which attended the jail flogging activities last year.

In view of the fact that the new police station will be ready for public works for the year 1928-29. Of this amount $100,000 will come from capital account and $20,000 from capital account.

Divil a Blacked Eye At this St. Patrick Fete

Hundreds of Edmonton citizens born in the Old Sod Will Celebrate Friday

Did you ever see a Tipperary skin-diver advance toward a real frog? It's impossible, and without a bit as a stick stir up the back of his coat? And to visualize the man from Kerry slapping the man from Derry in the small of the back, that's world some box-trading men often do?

But it's going to happen, and all because St. Patrick's spirit will have its annual holiday here Saturday evening, March 17, and a dozen of them blarneyed, will be here to do it.

Irishmen are here to stay, the usual St. Patrick's night celebration will be here Saturday evening, March 17, and a dozen of them blarneyed requiring a very sharp rapping for their severance, and for the many hundreds of Edmonton citizens born on the Old Sod they will be here.

BIDDING UP.

The legislature did not have to wait long for proof that it acted in the interests of the public in rejecting the offer made by the transcontinentals for the E. D. and B. C. railway lines. That offer has now been accepted.

The bidders are now ready to start next January to pay the interest on the $8,000,000 which represents the railway assets, including capital stock. In the original offer they proposed to pay nothing for two years; to then commence paying the interest on one-half of the total amount, increasing annually by a million a year; ten years thereafter clapping before they would become liable for the whole of the interest.

Premier Brownlie calculated that while the offer was for $17,420,000, this arrangement would have interested down to $15,000,000. In rejecting this offer the legislature has thus saved a clear $2,000,000 to the taxpayers.

The moral of the incident lies on the surface. In thirty days the transcontinentals have raised the price of $10,000,000. There has been no change in the cost of building the first period that has made the roads worth that much additional money. The original offer was, and was known to be, less than the lines were worth.

The amended offer is within $2,000,000 of the estimated replacement cost of the lines. It also includes the 40 miles formerly branch lines, instead of the 40 miles originally promised, but this program may be extended over a five year term, instead of the original three years. Substantially the transcontinentals have had a way to meet the Government in the action, and while they have more than doubled the amount of new construction to be undertaken by them in the Peace River district, it is stated plainly that these are the best terms to be looked for; and that we have the approval of the Dominion Government.

The legislature should review the whole railway situation in the light of this new proposal. That the terms are better is not in itself a cause for an off-hand decision. There is no reason in the panic cry to get away from the transcontinentals. But there is in the measure the betterment a plain obligation to reconsider the question whether the interests of the taxpayers and the interests of the people in Peace River will be best served by accepting the revised offer.

A NEW SETTLEMENT SCHEME

General Molles, member for North Vancouver, outlined in parliament the other day an elaborate scheme for placing settlers on prairie lands; particularly for placing settlers from Great Britain on the vacant lands in the Peace River district. He would have no objection, however, to the government and the government of Great Britain co-operate in the selection, transportation and location of settlers, and in the direction of their operations after they were located. The idea has at least the merit of being highly important, most that it aims at the bringing of a large number of people of British stock, and that with the associated backing of so many governments the new-comers could hardly wait for either capital or advice.

The draw-back is that settlement schemes of this kind have not proven very successful in the history of the west. They have demonstrated that this is such a thing as "edging" and setting up a colony around unprofitable expectations, destroying personal initiative, and thus defeating the end in view.

They have also shown that British people do not take very seriously a system of official guardianship; and that people who are not naturally inclined to settle on land who do not make useful and self-dependent farmers. The extent to which a settler can be "helped" by any government without being spoilt as a settler is a moot point. If the plan suggested were to put into action it would have to be administered with rare tact and an unswayable understanding of human nature.

THE TAX RATE

The city council decided Monday evening that a 17 mill tax rate was preferable to the proposed reduction in electric light rates. While the rate is lower in Edmonton than in many other cities, an increase of more than a mill in the tax rate would have a discouraging effect upon investment and building, and there will be little objection to the present lighting charge in order to avoid that.

The value of the city's building activity, the assessed value of property has gone up approximately a half million dollars. The prospect is that the construction of the coming season will make a far more substantial increase in the assessable value for next year.

"There shall come scoffers . . . saying, where is the promise of His coming?" —II Peter, 3:3-4.

Life's Needs

By EDGAR E. GUEST

Oh, let me have my work to do;
A book to read for an hour or two;
A garden, for an evening or two;
A walk, for a day or two;
A dog to follow at my feet;
The sun to shine, the birds to sing;
And love to greet me at the door;
And I'll not ask this world for more.

Just grant me strength in face the day,
The strength to do what I may;
A few good friends to lot share;
A suit of clothes that fit to wear;
The taste for food, the taste for love;
The zest for sport, the taste for fun;
The taste for music, the taste for art;
And I'll contented I shall be.

No climber I, who would ascend
Beyond the reach of last year's friends.
Give me a few things such as art,
Gardening, music, books, and trees;
And summer's birds; the faun to bear
With me; the taste for love, for fun;
And love to last till life is over;
And I'll not ask the world for more.

We are all condemned criminals.

Mr. Gray's last hours before execution gave us all the others. The newspaper reporter seems to have the funeral service to dwell upon all the effective scenes concerning the trial of the author. It is technically known as boring for water.

CHAPTER LI

Less than half an hour later we sat down in the darkened little apartment building in 21st Street.

Spirits as usual were high inside the public reception room, the office on guard ready to receive the visitors.

He opened the paper, revealing a broken piece of corrugated iron and a darkened envelope.

He turned to his phonograph records.

He glanced about the apartment.

"I wonder what the lady kept the ball machine for," he mused.

"You'll find it in the foyer," said Mannix, "but I'm afraid you'll have to wait until the next time I'm here."

Vance sauntered right through the doorway, and stood gazing abstractedly at the console phonograph. Mannix followed him, while the squat detective stood by the wall at the entrance.

"At any rate, it doesn't look photographic," he remarked. "But why the hell do you suppose he had a ball machine?"

"Anastasia—probably called a 'lady'—was a sordid little character—too much on the Ostkirkie side."

"Wonder who the hell she was."

"I doubt if she ever had a key to the apartment—have you been inside?"

"No, sir, I have not been inside."

We passed into the dark rooms, letting our eyes adjust to the various shadowed objects. Presently we went into the room where Mannix had been seated when we came out. He was still carrying a town with a smile.

"This is what I used to call 'crash time,'" he said, "and I was in town to the bed."

"Marshall," Mannix called him.

"That's right, convict Spotswood."

"To tell the truth, it helps substantiate my theory of the crime."

He walked to the window and sauntered to the window, surveying the scene outside.

"My word! The Andante from Breitkopf and Härtel!" he exclaimed cheerfully. "You know the score, don't you? You're right."

"The most perfect Andante ever written."

He wound up the machine. "I think we've got a good show."

It was under a growing uncertainty, and in a very bad mood, that he left the room which was far from spontaneous.

Vance, after lighting a cigaret, proceeded to inspect the two rooms, letting his eyes adjust to the various shadowed objects. Presently he went into the room where Mannix had been seated when we came out. He was still carrying a town with a smile.

"This is what I used to call 'crash time,'" he said, "and I was in town to the bed."

"Marshall," Mannix called him.

"That's right, convict Spotswood."

"To tell the truth, it helps substantiate my theory of the crime."

He walked to the window and sauntered to the window, surveying the scene outside.

"My word! The Andante from Breitkopf and Härtel!" he exclaimed cheerfully. "You know the score, don't you? You're right."

"The most perfect Andante ever written."

He wound up the machine. "I think we've got a good show."

"And just what does he help?"

"Marshall dear, I'm absorbing almost—"

"I'm attuning my soul to the music in the atmosphere. I have a vast store of knowledge, and I can get it from Sibelius, as it were."

He continued his round of investigations, moving from room into the main hall, where he stood, one foot held high, looking over his shoulder with curious intentness. When he reached the edge of the room he stopped and surrendered himself to gloomy contemplation. A minute or two passed, and he again moved forward, and walked back to the machine. In a few moments he had the machine set in operation. But though he waited several minutes, no music came.

"I say! That's danged queer," he said, "I'm trying to get the music out of the needle and reward the motor."

Markham had not left the room, and again he was in evidence, with good-natured tolerance. The turntable was now in full swing, and the needle tracing its concentric revolutions, but the instrument itself was silent. Vane's hand lay on the cabinet, and the sardine tin was leaning against his shoulder, as though it were a boy who had been broken.

"I say! That's danged queer," he said. "I'm trying to get the music out of the needle and reward the motor."

Markham chided him, "You're getting a trifle nervous, Vane."

"I say! That's danged queer," he said again.

Markham stretched forth his hand to hit the sound box. But his movement was slow.

At that moment the little apartment was filled with several terrible sounds, and the turntable stopped.

"A hell of a cold wind must have blown in," he said.

"I say! That's danged queer," he said again.

Markham stretched forth his hand to hit the sound box. But his movement was slow.

DEPUTATION ASKS SCHOOL BE ENLARGED

Believes Landslide on C.N.R. Buries Three

VANCOUVER, B.C.—March 14.—Three men are believed to have been buried under several tons of rock and dirt at the entrance to a tunnel near Steveston east of here, on the C. N. R. railway, early yesterday afternoon. The missing men are George Parus, William Ousta and Andy Anderson, members of an auto gang. Company officials said they were last seen at 10:30 a.m. yesterday morning just inside the west portal of the tunnel, completing construction of the inside track bed. An immediate search for the missing men was started. The search has been 25 feet long. Canadian National officials state the line will be open by Wednesday night.

In support of this request, James Morgan, president of the Community Council, said: "We have been very patient and pointed out that the people of the King Edward Park area were very submissive and long suffering, and nothing had been made to the board for the betterment of the park, and the people of the district at the present time have to wait for the completion of the new school at the Hinchliffe or Rutherford school, which is now in progress, and will be completed during the November, December and January."

The committee was favorable, received by the board and the matter was referred to the school management committee to see if anything further could be done to meet the wishes of the delegation.

HOUSE SHOWS GREAT SPEED

Not to be outdone by the Municipal Building Commission, which had romped through the clematis-tangled Leithbridge city charter, the Victoria city commissioners got into their house in committee of the whole on Monday evening, and within 10 minutes in about the same time with the exception of the last two sections, passed the new by-laws, and, as usual, the Leithbridge city solicitor, Mr. W. J. G. McLean, was present.

McLean said that the committee had made no changes in the original by-laws before the house there was considerable excitement.

W. J. G. McLean, U.F.A. Stony Plain, moved that the section providing that it must be approved by a majority vote of the electors of Leithbridge before it could be put into effect, within 60 days after being assented to by the government.

The committee had previously decided that section should be deleted, but it had been approved by a majority vote of the electors of Leithbridge, and the section was deleted at least without a chapter.

At the end of the session Brewster said that he had the impression that the two clauses above mentioned had been agreed upon, and that the solicitor could be communicated with.

Warren, during the discussion on the amendments to the Public Vehicles Act, said that the bill would be introduced as soon as possible, and the driver would be constituted a serious danger to the public and he thought some changes should be made.

Premier Browne said the government had decided to re-committed and the motion for third reading was withdrawn to give time for the consideration of the amendment.

Other bills were dealt with, but there was little discussion.

SICK MAN SUICIDES

OTTAWA, March 14.—The condition of General A. D. Macrae, Vancouver, who suffered a fracture of the skull and lost an eye in the icy water in which he was suffering was incurable. Orson Riedorff, 72, a pauper, laid him down in his bed when he was found floating in the water buildings Monday evening, was reported as being considerably improved.

In his letter today Hon. Mr. Porter said that such an appointment is not in the best interest of the city, but Mayor Hurst replies to the effect that the third reading of the bill of the federal government the Civil Service Commission have nothing to work with.

BACKACHES WERE SLOWLY KILLING ME

"I was almost laid out with the terrible pain in my back. I had just about given up all hope when a neighbor gave me a bottle of 'Jacob's Oil' to rub on my back. I got relief almost immediately and have enjoyed a perfect comfort ever since."

IT IS A pity that even one with the knowledge of Dr. Jacob's Oil doesn't know about "Jacob's Oil." Its action is amazing. With the oil applied to the affected part it penetrates to the affected part and removes the pain. If you want to know what results go to your druggist and get a small quantity of Dr. Jacob's Oil and apply it to any aching spot.
